The International Language and Culture Foundation

The International Language and Culture Foundation (ILCF) is a nonprofit, charitable foundation that funds projects promoting excellence in all areas of language education and the study of cultures.

Beginnings

The Foundation began in 1987 at the Defense Language Institute (DLI) at the Presidio of Monterey, California. Today, the Foundation is an independent, public, 501 (c) III organization.

Programs

The ILCF supports:

- Cultural Enrichment program (CEP) which provides funding for host-country sabbaticals and immersion courses for language teachers
- Annual awards for excellence in language education for both educators and students
- Scholarships for student of languages and the study of cultures
- Efforts to develop public awareness of the importance of language education and the study of cultures
- International educational exchange programs among public schools, colleges, and universities
- An annual resource display with current language educational and the study of cultures
- A seminar series on topics related to language education and the study of cultures.

Mission

The mission of the Foundation is to recognize and promote excellence in language education and the study of cultures by sponsoring educational projects and programs and by offering awards and scholarships to the international community of language educators, researchers, administrators, students, and others who are making significant contributions to the profession at the primary through university levels in the public and private sectors.

Membership

Annual individual membership fees are $15.00.

Annual student membership fees are $10.00.

Corporate memberships are also available upon request.

Membership fees and contributions are tax-deductible.
